INTRODUCTION

According to the Income Tax Law No.193, incomes of real persons are subject to the income tax. Income items subject to the income tax are commercial incomes, agricultural incomes, salaries / wages, incomes from independent personal services, incomes from immovable property and rights (rental incomes), incomes from capital investment and other income and gains.

Non-resident taxpayers are real persons who are not settled in Türkiye in other words who do not have their residences in Türkiye and who do not reside in Türkiye for a continuous period of more than six months within one calendar year. Non- resident taxpayers shall be taxed only on income and gains which they have obtained in Türkiye, they do not file a tax return in Türkiye for income and gains which they have obtained in foreign countries.

On the other hand, Turkish nationals who live abroad with a residence or work permit are also considered within the scope of the non-resident taxpayer. According to explanations made in the Communique Serial No. 210 of the Income Tax Law, Turkish nationals who live abroad for more than six months with a residence or work permit shall be taxed on the basis of limited liability in terms of income and gains which they have obtained in Türkiye, except for Turkish nationals residing in foreign countries due to their works affiliated with private enterprises whose headquarters are located in Türkiye or public institutions.

The guidebook has been prepared to present explanations and samples about the property and rights which are subject to the rental income, amount of exception for rental income from house, limit for declaration in workplace rental income, equivalent rental value implementation, expenses which shall be deducted from declared rental income, tax withholding in rental payments, taxation of rental income in terms of Double Tax Prevention Agreements, time and form of rental income declaration, tax schedule, calculation of income tax payable, payment ways in terms of the taxation of those who rent out their property and rights in 2021.

In addition, explanations have made on how to file a tax return swiftly, easily and safely via the Pre-filled Tax Return System serving 24/7, where tax returns on rental incomes are prepared in advance and submitted for the approval of taxpayers.

1. RENTAL INCOME

Incomes obtained from renting of the property and rights which are stated in the Income Tax Law No.193 is defined as “income from immovable property and rights” and are subject to the income tax in certain conditions.

The liable persons of immovable property’s income are the owners, tenants (persons having the rights to use actually), possessors, servitudes and usufruct right owners of the property and their tenants in the event of leasing of a rented property and rights.

2. PROPERTY AND RIGHTS WHICH ARE SUBJECT TO RENTAL INCOME

Property and rights which are subject to the rental income are defined in Article 70 of the Income Tax Law. They are mentioned as;

- Land, building, mineral water and underground water sources, mines, stone pits, production places of sand and gravel, brick and tile fields, saltworks and their component parts,
- Large fishing net fields and fishponds,
- Component parts of immovable properties leased separately and all their installations, inventory stock and flooring,
- Rights registered as immovable property,
- Searching, operating and franchise rights and their licenses, patent right, trademark, commerce title, any kind of technical drawing, design, model, plan and cinema and television films, audiotapes and videotapes, a secret formula belonging to an experience acquired in industry, commerce and science or rights as right of usage or privilege of usage on a production method,

- Copyrights,
- Ships and shares of ship and all the motorized shipment and unloading vehicles,
- Motorized transfer and draw-frame vehicles, any kind of motorized vehicle, machine and installation and their appurtenance.

3. OBTAINING OF RENTAL INCOME

Obtaining of rental income is bound to collection principle. In order to tax the rental income in accordance with the collection principle, it should be collected in cash or in kind.

3.1. Collection of Rental Income in Cash

Collection of rental income in cash states that the payment of rent in Turkish Liras or in foreign currency. Received cheques are also taken into account as collection in cash.

- Rental income collected by the taxpayers relating to that year or previous years is taken into account as the income of the year which it is collected in.

Example, if 2018, 2019 and 2020 rental incomes are collected in 2021, these incomes will be taken into account as the income of the year 2021.

- Rental income relating to prospective years which is collected in advance is not taken into account as the income of the year which it is collected in but as the income of the years which the income is related to.

Example, if 2021, 2022 and 2023 rental incomes are collected in 2021, each year's rental incomes will be taken into account as the income of the related year.

In terms of renting transactions in foreign currency, gross revenues in rental incomes are determined according to the exchange rate announced by the Central Bank of Republic of Türkiye on the collection date.

3.2. Collection of Rental Income in-kind

If the rental payment is collected in-kind (property, ware etc.), payments are valued according to the Tax Procedure Law No. 213

3.3. Collection and Payment of Leasing by Means of Banks or Postal Administration

According to the Income Tax General Communiqué Serial No. 268 and 298 which are published for the authentication with documents issued by banks or postal administrations of the collections and payments that are made in connection with the transactions regarding workplace and residential rentals;

- For residence, 500 TL or over per month for each house; in case of weekly, daily or similar short-term housing rental regardless of the amount for those who obtain a rental income,
- For workplace, without a limitation of amount for those who lease out their workplaces and their tenants need to make the payments and collection of the leasing by means of banks, financial institutions or postal administrations and are obliged to authenticate their payments and collections through documents issued by these institutions.

Since receipt or monthly statement is issued for the payment and collection while using mediums like depositing money, money order, cheque or credit card by means of banks, financial institutions or postal administrations, these documents shall be accepted as certifying documents. Payment and collection carried out via internet banking are also evaluated in the same scope.

The fine which shall be applied to persons who do not comply with the aforesaid obligations is 5% of each transaction's amount and it should be no lower than the amount of special irregularity fine determined for that year in accordance with the Repeating Article 355 of the Tax Procedure Law.

4. LOW OR NO VALUE FOR RENTAL INCOME

“The equivalent rental value” is taken as bases in case of low or no value for rental income. According to this basis, equivalent rental income principle shall be applied on the conditions of;

- leaving the immovable property to the usage of other persons for free,
- lower value of rental income of rented immovable property than the equivalent rental value.

The equivalent rental value in rented buildings and lands is the rental value determined by authorized specific authorities or courts.

If there is no renting determination or judgment for the aforementioned building or land, the equivalent rental value is 5% of its real estate tax value

The equivalent rental value in property and rights for other than buildings or lands is 10% of their cost price. If this cost is not known, it is 10% of determined values of them calculated in accordance with valuation of property provisions of Tax Procedure Law.

Example: Taxpayer (A) gave up a flat valued 900.000 TL to one of his/her friends without charge in 2021.

In this case, taxpayer (A) need to calculate his/her rental income on the equivalent rental value.

The equivalent rental value: $900.000 \times 5\% = 45.000$ TL. This amount should be considered as income to be declared.

The equivalent rental value principle is not applied under the following conditions:

- Leaving empty immovable properties to other person's residence in order to protect the immovable,
- Allocating the buildings to the residence of the property owner's mother, father, grandmother, grandchild, children, grandchild or siblings (But, if more than one house allocated to the residences of each of these persons, equivalent rental value is not calculated only for one of these houses. Example, if owner of property has allocated two houses to the residence of his/her child, it will not be calculated equivalent rental value for one house and for the second one it will be calculated.)
- Accommodating of relatives with the property owner in the same house or flat,
- Leasing done by General Budget and by Annex Budget Offices, by provincial administrations and municipalities and by other public institutions and organizations.

5. EXCEPTION FOR RENTAL INCOME FROM HOUSE

The amount of 7.000 TL for rental income from house for the year 2021 (the exception amount of 9.500 TL for the year 2022) is exempted from the income tax. If persons, who gain a rental income from house, obtain an income less than the amount of exception that is determined annually (the exception amount of 7.000 TL for the year 2021), they are not required to file a tax return.

Example: Taxpayer (B) rented his/her house from 550 TL per month and obtained 6.600 TL annually in 2021. In this case, since the rental income from house is less than the exemption amount of 7.000 TL, it will not be declared by the taxpayer (B).

In the case the rental income is not declared between the dates in time or the rental income is understated, it will not be able to benefit from the exception amount of 7.000 TL for the year 2021. However, those who submit returns, before any determination is made by the administration, on their own accord for their rental income which they did not declare or include in their returns on time, will benefit from the related exception.

In case the rental income from house exceeds the amount determined for exception, the amount of exception must be deducted from the rental income to be declared in the annual tax return.

The exception applies only to rental income from properties that have been rented as house. Taxpayers whose rental income from house under 7.000 TL in 2021 do not file a tax return for these incomes.

If there is a rental income obtained and declared at the same time both from house and workplace, the exception applies only to the rental income obtained from house, the exception does not apply to the rental income from workplace.

- Those who have to declare their income from commercial, agriculture or independent personal services,
- Regardless of whether a declaration is required or not, those who obtain a rental income from a residence above 7.000 TL, of whose gross total amount of their income including wage, income from capital investment, rental incomes, other income and gains jointly or severally exceeding the amount of 190.000 TL (the amount of the third income bracket in Article 103 of the Income Tax Law for the wages) for the year 2021, cannot benefit from the exception amount of 7.000 TL in incomes from immovable property and rights (rental incomes).

Example: In 2021, taxpayer (C) obtained the rental income of 26.400 TL from his/her property that she/he leased out as a residence and the rental income from his/her workplace of 66.000 TL which are taxed wholly by the withholding and the wage of 132.000 TL.

Whether the exception will be applied or not for taxpayer (C)'s rental income from his/her residence will be determined on the basis of whether the total income obtained by taxpayer (C) in 2021 exceeds 190.000 TL or not.

Since the total amount of income (24.600 + 66.000 + 132.000) exceeds 190.000 TL determined for the year 2021, it will not be possible to benefit from the exception of 7.000 TL for the rental income from the residence of 26.400 TL.

In case more than one person has the ownership of a house, the taxation of the rental income obtained from such house will be subject to 7.000 TL (for the year 2021) of the exception separately for each proprietor.

Thus, if the inheritance is not shared, every inheritor will benefit from the exception separately.

In case, a taxpayer obtains rental income from more than one house, the exception shall be applied at once to the total amount of rental income.

6. EXPENSES TO BE DEDUCTED WHEN DETERMINING RENTAL INCOME

In the taxation of rental income, the net amount of the income obtained is determined in two different ways as follows:

- Actual expenses method,
- Lump-sum expenses method (for other than those who lease out rights).

The selection of the actual expenses or the lump-sum method must cover all immovable property, which means that it is not possible to choose the actual expenses method for some part and the lump-sum expenses method for the remaining part.

Taxpayers opting for the lump-sum expenses method cannot return to the actual expenses method unless two years have passed.

6.1. Deduction of Expenses in Actual Expenses Method

If the actual expenses method is chosen, following actual expenses can be deducted from the gross amount of the rental income:

- Lighting, heating, water and elevator expenses paid by lessor for rented property,
- Management costs which are measured according to the importance of property and related with the administration of the rented property,
- Insurance expenses relating to the rented property and rights,
- Interest of debts relating to the rented property and rights,
- 5% of acquisition value of one rented house for 5 years beginning from the date of acquisition (This deduction applies only to rental income of the rented house; non-deductible part is not evaluated as expenditure surplus. This deduction is not valid for houses acquired before 2017),

The discount of 5% of the acquisition value will only be applied to one real estate rented as a residence. If the rental income is obtained from more than one real estate, this discount will not be used for other real estates. Also, real estates rented as workplaces will not benefit from the 5% expense deduction.

- Taxes, duties and fees paid for the rented property and rights and rates paid to municipalities for expenses by lessor,
- Depreciation setting aside for rented property and rights, and heat insulation and energy saving expenditures which are made by the lessor and that increase the economic value of the real estate. (These expenditures can be considered as cost if it exceeds 1.500 TL for the year 2021.)
- Repair and maintenance expenses incurred by lessor for the rented property,
- Rents and other actual expenses paid by sub-lessors,
- Rent of the house accommodated by the lessors who rent their own property, (non-deductible part is not evaluated as expenditure surplus),

It is not allowed for taxpayers not residing in Türkiye, (including Turkish nationals who reside abroad for a continuous period of more than six months with a residence or work permit) to deduct the amount of rents they pay in a foreign country from their rental income obtained in Türkiye.

- Cost of loss, detriments and compensations paid for rented property and rights based on a contract, law or court decree.

Non-residents who have opted for the actual expenditure method should keep the documents showing the expenses incurred for a period of 5 years and submit to the tax office when required.

6.1.1. Calculation of Deductible Expenses in Case of Exception in Actual Expenses Method

In case, a taxpayer chooses the actual expenses method and benefits from the exception applied to rental income from house, the part of actual expenses corresponding to the exception shall not be deducted from gross revenues.

The part of deductible expenses corresponding to the taxable revenue will be calculated using the following formula:

$$\text{Deductible expenses} = \frac{\text{Total Expenses} \times \text{Taxable Revenue}^*}{\text{Total Revenue}}$$

(*) Taxable Revenue = Total Revenue – Amount of Exception for Rental Income from House

Example: Taxpayer (D) rented his/her house in 2021 and obtained 66.000 TL of rental income. Taxpayer, who has no any other income, incurred 16.500 TL of expenditure for his/her property and chooses the actual expenses method.

The amount that taxpayer can deduct as actual expenses will be the amount that corresponds to the taxable revenue of the total expense for 16.500 TL.

$$\text{Taxable revenue} = 66.000 - 7.000 = 59.000 \text{ TL}$$

$$\text{Deductible expense} = (16.500 \times 59.000) / 66.000 = 14.750 \text{ TL}$$

In case, the amount of actual expense to be deducted from the rental income is 14.750 TL.

6.2. Deduction of Expenses in Lump-sum Expenses Method

Taxpayers opting for the lump-sum expenses method can deduct the lump-sum expense at the rate of 15% from their revenue against actual expenses. The lump sum expense, for taxpayers who obtain a rental income and who will be able to benefit from the residence exemption, will be calculated over the remaining amount after deducting the exception amount.

It is not possible to opt for lump-sum expenses method in the case of renting rights. For example, taxpayers, who gain a rental income from workplace and income from renting rights, must choose actual expenses method in their income tax return.

Taxpayers who have opted for the lump-sum method can deduct as a lump-sum expenses at 15% of their revenue. The lump-sum expenses rate is determined at 15% of the revenue to be applied to rental income from the date of January 1st, 2017.

7. IN CASE OF OCCURRING LOSS

At the adding up income, losses arising from part of the sources of income (except those arising from other income and gains written in Article 80 of the Income Tax Law) are deducted from the gains and losses of other sources.

Any decrease occurring in the capital itself which is subject to income from immovable property is not considered as loss and is not accepted as expense when determining the gross income amount.

Losses arising from the expenditure surplus in the calculation of the net amount of income from immovable property can be deducted from income to be declared in the following years not for more than 5 years.

There are two exceptions for this rule:

- In the event of any loss resulting from deducting the amount of the rent of the house or lodging paid by the lessor from the rental income of their house, such loss cannot be subject to deduction from the income from immovable property to be obtained in the following years.
- Non-deductible part of the amount corresponding to 5% of the acquisition value which has been subject to deduction of income from the one immovable rented as house is not considered as an expenditure surplus.

Accordingly, it is not possible to consider an expenditure surplus as loss in these situation.

8. TAX WITHHOLDING IN RENTAL PAYMENTS

Persons, corporations and entities who rented property and rights in accordance with Article 94 of Income Tax Law are obliged to withhold income tax on the gross amount of payments made for rent.

Persons, corporations and entities in question that are tenants have to withhold income tax from the gross amount of their rental payments at the rate of 20%.

Pursuant to the President of the Republic of Türkiye Decision No. 2813 and dated July 30th, 2020; the withholding rate applied in accordance with the Income Tax Law on rental payments made in cash or account between the dates of July, 31st 2020 – December, 31st 2020 has been determined as 10% and the effective date of the withholding rate, which has been determined by various President Decisions issued later for a provisional period, has been extended until September, 30th 2021 (including this date). Thus, the withholding rate will be applied as 10% for rent payments made between the dates of July, 31st 2020 -September, 30th 2021.

This withholding tax will also be made from the rent paid in advance for the upcoming months and years.

If tenants are taxpayers whose earnings are determined in the simple earning basis; Since they have not obligation to withhold taxes, they will not withhold on rent payments.

In case the immovable property leased out is used both as house and workplace; the total rent is subject to the withholding tax as long as it is used as workplace partially or in whole.

9. DECLARATION OF RENTAL INCOME

Non-resident taxpayers do not submit annual returns for their incomes from immovable property which are taxed wholly by the withholding in Türkiye. Also, in case they submit the annual return for other incomes, they do not include their incomes which are subject to the withholding in their returns.

Taxpayers whose income subject to declaration consists only of the rental income will submit the annual tax return, if;

- their rental income from house exceeds the tax exception amount (7.000 TL for the year 2021) and,
- their rental incomes, which are not subject to the withholding, obtained from leasing of the properties and rights within a calendar year.

On other saying, rental incomes that are not subject to the withholding and the exception must be declared the annual tax return regardless of the amount.

Every member of a family has to submit a return on their own behalf for the rental income they obtained from the property and rights belonging to them.

On the occasion that minor and restricted persons are taxpayers; the annual return to be submitted on behalf of them is signed by their parents, guardians or curators.

In case of having property and rights with shares, every partner need to declare the rental income corresponding to his/her own shares.

10. DEDUCTIONS TO BE MADE FROM INCOME INCLUDED IN ANNUAL TAX DECLARATION

15. RENTAL INCOMES FROM IMMOVABLE PROPERTY IN TERMS OF DOUBLE TAXATION AGREEMENTS

Rental income from immovable property is mentioned in Article 6, titled “Income from Immovable Property” and Article 12, titled “Royalties” of Double Taxation Agreements that Türkiye concluded.

Article 6 of the Agreements mainly deals with income from leasing of immovable properties and related rights, and provides that the State where the immovable property is situated has the right of taxation. Accordingly, taxation of the rental income from the immovable property situated in Türkiye of individuals resident in the other State will be in accordance with the procedure and principles of domestic legislation of Türkiye and in these Double Taxation Agreements there is not any provision limiting the domestic legislation.

Example, Taxpayer (E) who is living in Germany will be taxed in accordance with the domestic legislation of Türkiye in case he rents his/her property in Bodrum.

Türkiye has a limited right of taxation from the rental income of nonresident taxpayers obtained by leasing royalties defined in Article 12 of Double Taxation Agreements.

Rate of withholding to be made on the mentioned income may vary from state to state in the Agreements. If the rate specified in Article 12 of the Agreement and the rate defined in our domestic legislation differs, the calculation should be made according to the lower rate.

Example, Taxpayer (F) who is a music producer and living in Netherlands had given the copyright of taken over the music album to a music production company in Türkiye. The payments of copyright fees that would be done taxpayer (F) by the music production company are subject to 10% withholding tax according to Paragraph 2 of Article 12 of the Double Taxation Agreement between Türkiye and Netherlands.

As the example above, the payments that would be bought from someone else by the comic paper to taxpayer (G) who is a caricaturist and living in Netherlands, are subject to 10% withholding tax according to Article 12 of Double Taxation Agreement between Türkiye and Netherlands, in case he/she gives the usage right of the cartoons he bought to the comic paper in Türkiye.

However, in order to be taxed in line with Article 12 of Double Taxation Agreement, residents (full taxpayers) of other country who derive income or profit from Türkiye, should submit certificate of residence received from competent authorities of their own resident country along with the translated copy of it into Turkish language which shall be approved by a notary public or Turkish Consulates in that country, to the related tax office or the tax withholders in case withholding tax is required. Tax withholders are required to keep the certificates of residence to submit to the competent authorities on demand.

In case of failure of submitting the certificate of residence, domestic laws shall be applied instead of the Articles of the Agreement.

The taxes that would be paid by Turkish citizens, who are living in foreign countries related with the incomes they earned in Türkiye, would be deducted or exempted at the countries they are living in accordance with the Double Taxation Agreement with that country.

16. EXAMPLES RELATED TO RENTAL INCOME DECLARATION

Example 1: Taxpayer (A), living in Germany, leased out his/her flat in Ankara and obtained 17.000 € as rental income in 2021. Taxpayer (A), who has no other incomes to declare, preferred the lump-sum expenses method.

On the date of collection, buying rate for Euro announced by the Central Bank of Republic of Türkiye is assumed as 10,50 TL.

The income tax payable on the taxpayer's rental income is calculated as follows:

Income from Immovable Property (Residence) (17.000 € x 10,50 TL)	178.500 TL
Total Gross Revenue	178.500 TL
Amount of Exception	7.000 TL
Balance (178.500 TL - 7.000 TL)	171.500 TL
Lump-sum Expenses (171.500 TL x 15%)	25.725 TL
Net Income (171.500 TL - 25.725 TL)	145.775 TL
Taxable Income	145.775 TL
Amount of Income Tax Calculated	35.711,25 TL

Example 2: Taxpayer (B), living in Poland, leased out his/her flat in Antalya and obtained 20.000 $ as rental income in 2021. She/he preferred the actual expenses method and she/ he has no other incomes to declare. His/her total actual expense for this house is 6.600 $.

On the date of collection and expenditure, buying rate for Dollar announced by the Central Bank of Republic of Türkiye is assumed as 8,90 TL.

Total revenue = 20.000 $ x 8,90 TL = 178.000 TL

Total expenses = 6.600 $ x 8,90 TL = 58.740 TL

Taxpayers who have chosen the actual expenses method will not deduct as expenses corresponding to the amount subject to the exception from their income, they will only be able to deduct expenses corresponding to the taxable revenue. For this, the expense part corresponding to the taxable revenue must be calculated. Deductible expenses corresponding to the taxable revenue is calculated as follows:

$$\text{Deductible expenses} = \frac{\text{Total Expenses} \times \text{Taxable Revenue}}{\text{Total Revenue}}$$

Taxable Revenue = Total Revenue – Amount of Exception for Rental Income from House

$$= 178.000 \text{ TL} - 7.000 \text{ TL}$$

$$= 171.000 \text{ TL}$$

$$\text{Amount of expenses corresponding to taxable revenue} = \frac{58.740 \text{ TL} \times 171.000 \text{ TL}}{178.000 \text{ TL}} = 56.430 \text{ TL}$$

(Amount of deductible actual expenses)

The income tax payable on the taxpayer's rental income is calculated as follows:

Income from Immovable Property (Residence) (20.000 $ x 8,90 TL)	178.000 TL

Net Income (171.000 TL - 56.430 TL)	114.570 TL
Taxable Income	114.570 TL
Amount of Income Tax Calculated	26.023,90 TL
Amount of Income Tax Payable	26.023,90 TL
Stamp duty	132,30 TL

The annual tax return will not be declared regardless of the amount for workplace rental incomes which are taxed wholly by the withholding in Türkiye.

Total revenue from workplace (gross) = 10.312,50 € x 10,50 TL = 108.281,25 TL
